'art for all'

FROM THE STUDIO

What's been happening at the Best Street Studios over this last long cold rainy winter term? There has certainly been enough action to keep us all warm and toasty!

The term began with Operation Art – where 200 kids aged 5-12 years from Riverina regional schools came to the Wagga Regional Art Gallery to experience intensive art activities over one week. The children printed, drew, collaged, painted and sculpted in clay. This was absolutely FULL ON! Friday was a bonus for teachers with Lisa teaching a workshop on operation art and a variety of hands on art activities. My head is still buzzing; I took so much from that week back to my studios at Best Street and beyond. Thank you to the Operation Art team for inviting me to be involved in this amazing event!

The after school kids have completed their dinner set, decorated in blue and white glaze based on the willow pattern design. They have hand crafted a mug, a plate, a soup/breakfast bowl, a serving platter, 2 dip/sauce bowls, and pepper and salt shakers. A big, big effort for 5-12 year olds!

To break up the intensity of making functional ware whose completion seemed so distant, the kids also made fish sculptures and bird houses. We drew with blue ink and sticks, charcoal, pencil and oil pastels. We try to draw every week, either a structured drawing exercise, or drawing up our designs for our clay work.

As Alan Peascod, Australia's exceptional clay artist said "Drawing reduces the amount of labour required for exploration. An expressive line can suggest 3 dimensional possibilities that may never otherwise have occurred".

Our adult students have been extremely busy, with an outpouring of ceramic work emerging from the kilns. The last of the jomon pots have been glazed and re-fired, with beautiful results. New students could not believe that they could make such large, lovely pots straight up on entering the studio.

We have seen many animal and bird sculptures – Milton and Marion have both made huge dogs (80 x 120cm) and we have an extraordinary range of chooks! It never ceases to amaze me how many different interpretations of the good old chook can be created.

We have been experimenting with a variety of surface decorative techniques through a series of test tiles and 'art quote tiles'. So far, we have looked at oxides, the use of frits (a sort of glass), over all of our range of clays. We have experimented with texture, stamping and sprigging and have been carving through underglazes with special carving tools to create patterns, text and pictures on clay tablets.

We have had a couple of workshops at the studios – clay bird houses and big pears. Wagga will have the best housed birds in the Riverina, and the pears are so big I will need a crane to lift them into the kiln.

The highlight this term has been my two trips out west - Carrathool Public School and Wakool Public School. Such warm welcomes and such enthusiasm for clay was fantastic!

At Carrathool the kids (and teachers) created beautiful 'Boats into the Future' – we examined a variety of boats, both historic and contemporary, river, lake and ocean, leisure and work boats. Then we imagined what we would take with us into the future on our boats – both practically and more philosophically. The children came up with a surprising range of ideas: from food, water and fishing lines to family, pets, books, solar lights and money.

We made our boats from sheets of clay which the kids rolled out with a rolling pin, and then wrapped around newspaper amateurs (the skeleton of the sculpture). After constructing all morning the kids painted glaze onto their boats in the afternoon, and after packing everything into my car I sailed off across the billabong green of the beautiful Riverina landscape in full early spring bloom. Ahhhh.... And to top all of this off I am heading back for another two days with the kids in late October ☺

The following week – I head to Wakool Public School. What fun! Moulamein Public School joined us on the Monday.

After driving for hours I pulled up at the Wakool Pub at 9pm, walked in and knew I was out west when I saw the dogs lying on the floor at their owner's feet!

These two days in Wakool could easily be eight days anywhere else! In just two days we managed to make 30 chooks, 26 fish, 10 owls, and 12 pears – and that was just the kids! On Monday night the ladies of the district came together for a workshop and made chooks. All of their work was designed, constructed and glazed in the 2-3 hour sessions.

Packing them all into my little Subaru station wagon was an exercise in 3 dimensional jig sawing! I NEED A UTE!!!!

A couple of wonderful trips – I had as much fun as all the kids! A big thanks to Carrathool, Wakool and Moulamein, especially Anna, Vicki and Julie and assorted Kathryn's, Cathy's and Kath's!

FEATURE STORY

Earth Hour inspired Arty Dinner Party

Wednesday night students were invited to an Arty Dinner Party where the menu consisted of three courses of art activities all done by candlelight.

Inspired by the Earth Hour earlier in the year, where we were encouraged to turn our lights off for an hour, I decided it would be fun to make art by candlelight. It grew from there...

Scouring wagga's op shops, we came up with boxes of candles, glass bowls, glasses and old silver platters, trays, sugar bowls, and a wide variety of candlesticks. Everything was cleaned, candles arranged on every ledge, shelf and table and art materials presented on silver and crystal!

Our menu consisted of:

Entree: Blue Pears – pears drawn in blue ink (using sticks) on circles of paper, then collaged for old Australian 1960's yearbooks

Main Course: Found Object Faces – faces constructed on plywood circles using bits and pieces from Kath's bower-bird collection of found objects.

Dessert: Pithy art quotes carved back into round clay tablets

Lots of fun and together, the theme of the night was "BLING". Milton won the 'Most Colourful' for his incredible hippy interpretation of bling. We think he's discovered his alter-ego ☺

We can't wait to do it all again next year! Watch the website for details.

USEFUL ARTS INFORMATION & READINGS

Artist careers research

The Australian Council for the Arts has released two new pieces of research which together paint a comprehensive picture of the working lives of Australia's 44,000 professional artists. The two projects – Do you really expect to get paid? by Professor David Throsby from Macquarie University and What's your other job? by Professor Stuart Cunningham from the Queensland University of Technology – both show that artists continue to struggle financially, earning a median income of just $35,900 a year, including arts and non-arts related income.

Both reports and the research project summary are available for download from the Australia Council website <http://www.australiacouncil.gov.au/research/artists>
